Mr. Morse returned on Wednesday night. It is important to show who occupied the house that night, and we will just go to the front part of the house. The prisoner came in last that night and fastened the front door, upon which there were three fastenings. The cellar door had been closed since Tuesday, and by complete evidence this will pe proved. Bridget came in at the back door and went to bed upstairs, and when these women came in and went to bed every exterior approach was closed.

The prisoner slept in her own room that night and Morse in the guest chamber. Mr. and Ms. Borden slept in their room over the kitchen and Bridget was first up, we may safely assume, on the proof that the only human beings in the house that night were those we have mentioned.

Bridget got her fuel downstairs and built a fire; got the milk at the rear door, and locked it after site brought it in. There was a screen door here, and this it was which Bridget locked after she got the milk. Lizie came down, then Mrs. Borden and then Mr. Borden. He did some chores in the barn and was seen by Bridget. She saw Morse only at breakfast with the others.

When preparing to wash the windows, Bridget went to the back door and saw the prisoner there, and asked her not to lock the door, as she wanted to come in and get wate; but she said afterwards that she might lock it if she wished and she would get water from the barn. The door was left unlocked and the prisoner went into the house.

In washing these windows, there were two sitting-room windows, which were washed first; then Bridget came to the front of the house and then to the north side and washed the parior and dinings.

She saw neither Mrs. Borden nor the prisoner during all the time she was washing those windows. When she fince this street Rev. Artun thehe and five. Edward it is say that the same in locked the door, and the suffered a concussion of the brain.

At 10.25 Mr. Borden was at the store of Mr. Clegg, who fixes the exact time. He left, at 10.40, another store for his home, but a short distance away. Mrs. Kelly saw him coming from the screen door, where he had evidently tried to get in, and taking out his latchkey to use at the front door.

When he came home Bridget found the front door locked and boiled, contrary to custom in that house. He had put his key in, but the door was locked and boiled. He came in and made some talk about opening the door, and the prisoner, from the hall above, made some laughing exclamation.

At that time Mrs. Borden's body lay above, dead probably more than an hour. The prisoner then came to him, asking him for mail, and said, "Mrs. Borden is gone out; she had a note, and has gone in answer to it." That was a lie to stife inquiry.

because they are believers in Theosophy.

Miss Elizabeth Chapin was discharged last week, and now Mrs. Armstrong the matron, and Miss Louise J. Kirk-wood, a teacher, have openly declared that they, too, are believers in the objectionable creed.

To an "Evening World" reporter Mrs. Armstrong said to-day that she fully expected that the directors of the institution would take up the case of Miss Kirkwood and of herself and reach some decision regarding them.

"Of course." Mrs. Armstrong added. "we must expect to be discharged if the precedent set in the case of Miss Chapin is to be followed. But we are perfectly resigned to the outcome, whether favorable or unfavorable to us. "We have not endeavored to teach theosophy here, but merely entertained those views, and if we are to suffer for our religious belief we will bear it."

Julius Blanckensee Arrested on Charges Made by Her.

She Says She Gave Him the Money

Detective Sergts. EVon Gerichten and Trainer this morning arrested Julius Blanckensee, of 1835 Madison avenue. The arrest was made in City Hall Park while Blanckensee was on his way to the Register's office to deed some property to his wife.

Blanckensee was indicted by the Grand Jury several weeks ago on the complaint of the widow of Capt. Wiltse, who commanded the Boston during the trouble at Honolulu. Mrs. Wiltse resides at 42 East Fifty-third street. She owns several apartment-houses on First avenue near Eighty-second street, and employed Blanckensee as her agent to collect rente.

to give him $10,000 to invest in securities. He took the money and disappeared. On April 16 Mrs. Wiltse received the fol-lowing letter:

The Custom-House patronage is much larger and, from a spoilsman's view, more lucrative than that of the Post-Office. There are nearly 1,000 unclassified piaces, or, in other words, exemply from the Civil-Service law.

The Appraiser's Riores alone furnish employment to hundreds of laborers, who are not amenable to any rule except of the district leaders and the law of the Civil-Service law.

O'Leary was shot and mortally wounded by Private Roberts, at Fort Sherman, Idaho, the other day.

The Custom-House would be more satisfactory to Tammany Hall, as it would afford the district leaders an opportunity to place in the Federal service the uncared for braves in their balliwicks.

If the Custom-House goes to the Anti-Snappers, they will draw the capital prize. The Post-Office is regarded by them as a plum to which they say Tammany is most welcome.

SPANISH CARAVELS DEPART.

The Start for Chicago Made at Just Before Noon To-Day. Shortly before moon to-day the three Spanish caravels, which have been an-chored up the North River for the last six weeks, made a start for Chicago. They came down the river in tow of the tug Triton. The three caravels were lashed together side by side, and they turned the Battery wall on their they turned the Battery wall on their way up the East River at noon.

At Whitestone the United States cruiser Newark was lying in wait to convoy the caravels.

Lieut. Pillabury will have charge of the fleet as far as Quebec.

The Newark takes charge of the Santa Maria, the Iwarra of the Pinta and the Triton tows the Nina.

The sails of the caravels were all furled as they passed down the stream, but they all displayed the Spanish colors of Ferdinand and Isabelia from their mastheads.

The route is through Long Island Sound, along the New England coast, around Nova Scotia to and through the Gut of Canso and Northumberland Strait.

The Newark will leave the caravels around Nova Scotla to and through the Gut of Canso and Northumberland Strait.

The Newark will leave the caravels at Quebec and return to Norfolk Navy-Yard. They will proceed the remainder of the voyage through the great lakes to Chicago under the care of the Iwarra and Triton.

How long it will take them to accomplish this journey depends very much upon the weather, but if they are not detained by fogs at the Banks and off the mouth of the St. Lawrence the trip ought not to take more than a moath.
